The Genesis:

United Artists' Association (UAA) believes in community empowerment and provides support and strengthens to people's organisations, NGOs and CBOs in its area of operation. UAA was established in the year 1964 by a group of like minded youth to help the people affected by natural calamities and to further efforts in starting educational institutions. Since then it has been working with downtrodden sections of society with focus on women and children. UAA is headquartered at Ganjam in Ganjam district of Orissa.

Welfare activities were initiated as early as 1964. The youth leaders of Ganjam village came together to implement a Government drinking water supply scheme. In the year 1965, several youth clubs came together to work under a common platform and raised funds through cultural programmes & drama to be used for welfare, emergency relief and establishment of library and educational institutions. Thus the organisation derived its name "United Artists' Association". Voluntarism was corner stone of the organisation.

Up to the year 1977 UAA worked exclusively with its own funds. In 1978, the first government funded Balwadi and Crèche programme was taken up. To achieve the set objectives various programmes were taken up which includes community organisation, education, health and sanitation, protection of environment, training, social forestry, disaster preparedness, livelihood and application of appropriate technology. UAA has adopted a 'bottom-up' strategy to ensure the involvement of the community in planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of the programme.

Capabilities:

In the course of 40 years of development work at the grassroots level, the organisation has acquired special skills in community organisation and the process of building up people's organisations. It also enjoys active support and co-operation of the State, District and Block level officials. As one of the leading organisations in the State, it has a high standing as a reliable committed voluntary organisation in Government circles. This is borne out by the fact that the Government has nominated UAA to various state and district level consultative/ advisory committees from time to time. Ministry of Agriculture, Department of Fisheries, Government of India has nominated UAA as one of the National Task Force member for BOBLME Program. Both Government and UN agencies has entrusted the responsibility of Nodal Agency for implementation of Water and Sanitation program as well as coordinate Disaster Preparedness activities in the district. Funding agencies too, hold a very favourable impression for UAA, because of its reach at the grassroots level, consistency in field involvement and judicious handling of funds.

In the year 2001 the organisation is honoured with a State Level Award for 'Commendable Service to Humanity' by the "State IYV Committee" headed by The Chief minister.

Changing Role:

In the year 1995 Govt. of Orissa and UNICEF recognized the organisation as nodal NGO and canalized their funds through UAA to develop water and sanitation status in the rural areas of the district. Since then the organisation works with a network of grassroots NGO/ CBOs. During its intervention UAA along with 117 NGOs of Ganjam and Gajapati district have constructed around 8000 low-cost toilets. The organisation has established a sanitation resource centre and model village, having all components of safe water and sanitation with the participation (both physical and financial) of the community. Ground-breaking experiment:

In order to address the complex issue of human and soil health and productivity, a new strategy was adopted in 2004 with the support of Centre of World Solidarity-Hyderabad, to establish Organic Farming for sustainable agriculture when 10 Model Organic Villages were promoted in 3 blocks of the district. These model villages, named 'Mati Mukti-Chaasi Mukti', (meaning "soil freedom from Chemical fertiliser and pesticide related Poisonous effect and Farmers Free from market driven loan burden") have emerged as transitional organic model villages for others to emulate. This was backed up with an integrated organic fertiliser and pesticide production and use for improving soil health and reduces farmer dependency on market for input. The Corporate Partner 'Sir Dorabjee Tata Trust, Mumbai' came forward to support for scaling up the intervention through promotion of SRI process for increasing productivity of rice with less use of water and the program is going on in 52 villages of same blocks. The most significant feature of this campaign, however, has been an intensive Information, Education and Communication (IEC) programme.

The hallmark of the entire initiative has been a strong network of Federation of farmers, under the overall leadership of United Artists' Association (UAA), and farmers groups were certified their produces under Participatory Guarantee Scheme (PGS) by Organic Farmers Association of India (OFAI), Goa. UAA played a catalytic role to develop the capacity in terms of managerial, technical and HR of farmer network members. The success of this experiment has caught the imagination of the State and organic farming got a space in the state agriculture policy.
